Market Commentary

In the final quarter of the year, there was notable appreciation in asset prices for both stocks and bonds. This was influenced by major central banks signaling the end of a historically steep cycle of rate hikes. Toward the end of the quarter, positive inflation readings heightened expectations of a substantial decline in interest rates over the upcoming years.

Loan values remained steady after an initial decline, while high yield bonds experienced significant strength. CLOs concluded the year on a strong note, gradually catching up with other asset classes. Nonetheless, CLOs continue to present significant yield pick-up versus most other credit investments.

Performance

The NAV saw an increase of 7.7% in Q4 2023. Loan prices remained stable, while high yield bonds had a particularly strong quarter. CLO tranches throughout the capital structure concluded the year strongly. Despite this, CLOs continue to look very attractive compared to other credit investments as well as other asset classes.

The fund deployed capital into an US investment grade position, purchased both CLO equity and Single Bs in the secondary market, and continued to deploy capital into a CLO warehouse. The fund also closed a tail risk hedge which played out well.

The next NAV and quarterly report will be published ten business days into the second quarter of the year.
